A SUDDEN SUMMONS.

Thomas M. Armstrong Died in the Court House

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON.

He Was a Member of the Bedford Bar—Attorney for the County Commissioners—Thirty Years.

Attorney Thomas M. Armstrong died suddenly in the court house Wednesday afternoon at half past three. He was coming down the stairs, having just returned from the hall where he was on the third step from the bottom when Register and Recorder Edgar R. Horne, who was nearby, spoke to him. Mr. Armstrong replied and almost immediately afterward fell to the floor. Mr. Horne caught him as he was falling and broke the force of the fall. Prothonotary James Cleaver and Deputy-Prothonotary E. Howard Blackburn went to his assistance, but Mr. Armstrong was dying when they reached his side. His eyes were summoned and they caught the breath of the bystanders, that life was extinct. The cause of death was heart failure. Undertaker M. A. Stoner took charge of the body and prepared it for burial.

Thomas M. Armstrong was a son of James Devocon Armstrong and was born in Frostburg, Md., on March 15, 1846. He was educated in the schools of his native town and at Michigan university, Ann Arbor, Mich. He studied law for two years and then came to Bedford, where he was admitted to the bar on December 3, 1873, and practiced in Bedford since that time. Mr. Armstrong was attorney for the county commissioners from 1873 to 1881 and was the legal adviser of the directors of the poor for about fourteen years.

He is survived by his wife and the following children: Lenore, who is employed in Mrs. Ella Gilchrist's millinery store, Bedford; Winnie, Davidson and Mary, at home; Devocon, who is in the employ of the U. S. Fish Commission, and Frank, a clerk in Kaufman's store, Pittsburgh. Three sisters and one brother also survive him, namely, Mary, of Frostburg, Md.; Mrs. S. M. Hartman and Mrs. M. B. Ockerman, of Baltimore, and Davidson, president of the Citizens' National bank, Frostburg, Md.

Mr. Armstrong was uniformly kind and courteous; he was a well read man and a fluent speaker. Although an ardent Republican, he was not a bitter partisan.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be made in the Bedford cemetery.

Meeting of the Bar.

Yesterday morning the members of the Bedford Bar assembled in the court house to take action on the death of Mr. Armstrong. John H. Jordan, Esq., was elected chairman and D. Cress Bailey, Esq., secretary. H. D. Tate, Esq., Frank Fletcher, Esq., and J. F. Biddle, Esq., were appointed a committee to draft resolutions. These gentlemen presented the following resolutions:

Resolved, That the Bedford Bar has again sustained a loss in its membership, through the untimely death of Thomas Armstrong, Esq., a member of the bar for twenty-three years, has been mingling with us and engaging in the contests incident to our profession, and that he has been a sterling integrity and endeavored him to these with whom he came in contact.

THE OLD AND THE NEW.

Careers of George B. Beale and Simon C. Long.

George B. Beale, the newly appointed superintendent of the Bedford division, arrived here Wednesday evening and took charge of his new position at midnight.

Mr. Beale was born in Philadelphia, May 27, 1851. He was educated in the University of Pennsylvania, from which institution he was graduated on June 15, 1881. He was appointed roadman in September, 1881, and employed on the extension of the second track of the Baltimore and Potomac railroad north of Washington, D. C., in the fall of 1881, when he was promoted to levelman and trainman on the Philadelphia, Germantown and Chestnut Hill railroad, in which capacity he served until July, 1883, at which time he resigned. He again entered the service as roadman in February, 1884, on the Pittsburgh division of the Pennsylvania railroad, continuing in that position until February, 1888, when he was transferred to the New York division at Jersey City and placed in charge of the engine corps of that division, March 10, 1888. He was appointed assistant supervisor of Division "A" New York division, November 1, 1889, and promoted to supervisor of the same division, May 1, 1890. He was appointed assistant engineer of the Middle division, Philadelphia and Erie railroad, December 17, 1894, and transferred to assistant engineer of the Middle division, Pennsylvania railroad, October 1, 1895, and in 1899 was transferred to the same position on the New York division, with headquarters at Jersey City. The Bedford employees are very favorably impressed with the new superintendent, and they hope that he will, as far as possible, carry out the plans of his predecessor, S. C. Long, who left Bedford on Tuesday for Pittsburgh to make an inspection of his new field of labor, a promotion he richly deserves.

Simon Cameron Long was born near Harrisburg on September 7, 1857. He attended the public schools and graduated from the high school at Pine Grove in 1875. He entered Lafayette college, Boston, the same year; he took a full technical course and graduated in 1877, with the degree of Civil Engineer. The same month in which he graduated he started as an engineer and later in the same year he entered the service of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad, serving in various capacities; then he was employed by several coal mining companies in the lower Schuylkill region in engineering and other work. On April 3, 1881, he entered the service of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, by recommendation of the late Hon. Simon Cameron, as roadman in the construction of the four-track system on the Philadelphia division, rising to assistant, and was given charge of a corps. In April, 1888, on recommendation of Assistant Chief Engineer Robert E. Pettit, he was transferred to the engine office at Altoona, since which time his appointments and promotions have been as follows: December 1, 1889, assistant supervisor Pittsburgh yard; May 15, 1889, assistant supervisor, Wills, Pa.; August 14, 1889, assistant supervisor Philadelphia yard; February 1, 1889, supervisor Monaca division; November 1, 1889, supervisor, Lancaster, Pa.; November 1, 1890, supervisor, Delaware division, Philadelphia; January 1, 1891, assistant supervisor, Washington and Baltimore railroad; January 1, 1891, assistant supervisor Maryland division, P. W. &amp; B. R.; and in 1899, superintendent of the Bedford division, P. W. &amp; B. R.

It is expected that Mr. Long will return from Pittsburgh tomorrow morning and take Mr. Beale over the division to meet the employees and learn the various locations of improvements to be made this year, which are as follows: New side track 4,000 feet long at Snake Spring; bridge of 70 feet span and change of alignment at bridge 30, south of Hyndman; rebuilding of the one span and a new additional span at bridge 10, Hyndman; rebuilding of the wall at bridge No. 4, Jamison's; and a new pier at bridge No. 5, Cliffe.

As we spoke of Mr. Long in last week's issue, it is not necessary to say anything more than to repeat the words of an employee that he is "a railroad man and a gentleman from the soles of his feet to the crown of his head."

Double Wedding Anniversary.

The Waynesboro Independent correspondent says:

There was a very happy double anniversary at the home of Jacob J. Miller, West Main street, Tuesday evening, May 1, 1891. The event was the wedding of his daughter, Miss Miller, to Mr. Miller, and Samuel D. Hooker was united in marriage to the bride. The ceremony was a notable one, made doubly so by the brilliant order of attendants of the bride.

A year ago on April 1, Mr. Charles O. Miller, of Saxton, son of Jacob J. Miller, was married to Miss Anna Kleider, of her home in Bedford. The event was one of the social successes of the year.
